

Pre-Anesthesia/Surgery Instructions

You may be planning, or have already scheduled, to have your pet admitted for a medical procedure (i.e., surgery, dental cleaning, endoscopy, etc.). Please read the following information carefully before the scheduled procedure.

Setting a date

If you haven't already done so, call Redwood Veterinary Hospital at (707) 553-1400 to make an appointment for the procedure. The surgical service at Redwood Veterinary Hospital is very popular, so appointments are required. When you make your appointment, keep in mind that on most weekdays we admit patients between 7:00 and 7:45am. The admission period may vary from time to time depending on staffing and doctor availability. If your pet is to be admitted on a day when the admission period is different, an RVH team member will call you to advise you of the change.

Pre-anesthetic blood testing

Your pet's doctor will recommend pre-anesthetic blood tests to assure the safest possible anesthetic experience for your pet. We request that you to bring your pet in sometime before the scheduled procedure date for a nurse to draw the small blood sample. Many times this brief appointment with the nurse is set up when you make the original surgery/procedure appointment; if not, simply call the front desk (707-553-1400) and they will set up a time that's good for you and your pet. By doing the testing ahead of time we can focus on getting started with your pet's procedure earlier, instead of waiting for results from our in-house lab. Additionally, because lab tests run ahead of time help us work more efficiently, we will extend to you a small discount on the cost of these blood tests if they are run before the day of the procedure. (If it is not possible for you to have these tests run prior to the scheduled day of the surgery/procedure, we would be happy to run them the morning of the procedure at their regular price.)

The night before

You should try to keep your normal routine the night before the planned procedure. This would include normal levels of activity and diet. Most anesthetic/sedation procedures for dogs and cats require that the pet be fasted (no food) for the 12 hours prior to the procedure. Usually, we recommend simply picking up the food bowl at bedtime the night before. Other species of pets (rabbits, birds, "pocket pets") may have a different pre-anesthetic fasting period; your pet's doctor will advise you if this is the case. Do not restrict water! Your pet should have free access to water up until you leave to come in the day of the procedure. If your pet requires any special preparation prior to his/her procedure the doctor or nurse will let you know well in advance.

Admission

As noted above, on most weekdays we admit surgical/procedural patients between 7am and 7:45am on a "first come first served basis". In most cases admitting your pet to the hospital will take about 15-30 minutes. You will be asked to review and sign a brief surgery admission form authorizing the hospital to proceed with the planned procedure. Alternatively, you can download this form from our website at www.redwoodvet.com and fill it out ahead of time. The doctor or chief surgical nurse will want to personally admit your pet. In this way he/she can answer any questions and be sure all the necessary plans are in order. In some cases patients can be admitted the night before their scheduled surgery/procedure date. If you would prefer to admit your pet the night before, please arrange this when making your appointment.

Please feel free to call and talk with one of our Health Care Team members at (707) 553-1400 if you have any questions about your pet's upcoming surgery/procedure.
